Ocean Gold (Sea Clipper). Dec. 2012-April 2013 (Washington)

-I was one of two deckhands aboard the Sea Clipper which is a 120' trawler. While in dock we worked on nets, splicing ropes, welding pumps, tuning hydraulics, replacing lights, readying the boat for bottom fishing. Our boat frequently went out in storms while all the other boats remained in dock. I had to work extremely hard in very dangerous situations with very little sleep. We all had to work while seasick at times because the swells were frequently up during winter. Our captain was later diagnosed with bi-polar disorder and was eventually let go. He would scream in our faces and enjoyed working us to nearly to death. There were times we were starting to hallucinate due to lack of sleep. The other deckhand who is a childhood friend is now the captain. We had to cope together and work as a team to survive.
